Our aim is to deliver world-class science-for-policy support to bring Europe closer to citizens and places, turning territorial diversity into value. We aim at strengthening the EU global role in putting forward place-based solutions for recovery and sustainability and at localizing global agendas, bringing back to Europe what we learn from outside.

We build on an impressive team of colleagues and on a unique combination of knowledge, data, methods, analytical and modelling tools as well as extensive links to urban, local, regional, national and international stakeholders, authorities and communities.

The Unit works across two JRC sites: Seville (Spain) and Ispra (Italy). Staff are broken down around 50% per each site.

WE PROPOSE:

RE-OPEN EU combines, in one single page, the measures to leave the country of origin, entering the country of destination and transiting through other countries, and it aims to contribute to ensuring clarity on the rules in place and to restoring the confidence of travellers in reliably organising their travel across Europe. Re-open EU is also announced as the place where information on Digital Green Certificates will be made available, setting the path to dispelling remaining concerns and opening the door for the coming summer season.

The jobholder will analyse travel, safety and related measures set by Member States. Main tasks will include:

- Collect information from relevant national, regional and local sources;
- Assessment and analysis of collected information to ensure readability and consistency ;
- Write and edit national thematic factsheets on travel, health, safety and other related topics;
- Report to other scientists, to the team leader and to the head of unit the status and results of the work, including through seminar, written reports, presentations and demonstrations;
